Buoyant commodity prices have driven the demand for quality exploration properties.

The surge in all commodity prices has seen companies looking at non-traditional metals such as iron or uranium, which most explorers hadn't even thought about for decades.

Most of the economists that have commented on the commodity demand believe this upturn will be sustained for the next few years at a minimum.

The Ontario Prospectors Association has witnessed a banner year in exploration in Ontario and around the world. The OPA has heard from numerous members about new discoveries and subsequent option agreements that result in the economic stimulation of Ontario.

In the last year we have had some interesting developments on the mining side of the business. Ontario's first diamond mine is in development. The merger of Inco and Falconbridge and the emergence of smaller mining companies are changing the operational landscape of Sudbury. On the gold side the power of last year's Goldcorp merger is being seen with the purchase of Placer Dome's Ontario assets. In the PGE business the Sudbury area is a hot exploration location, North American Palladium continues its expansion underground and Marathon PGM is moving rapidly to being a potential producer. The northeast of the province is booming with gold exploration, development and mining. In Timmins, Lake Shore Gold has unlocked the 100 year old mystery of gold mineralization west of town. St. Andrews and the Porcupine Joint Venture are continuing their success and production. Kirkland Lake Gold has used modern computer technology to unravel some of the complexity of the Kirkland Lake gold mineralization.

These are only a few of the extremely active areas and projects in Ontario. Buoyant commodity prices have driven the demand for quality exploration properties. The surge in all commodity prices has seen companies looking at non traditional metals such as iron or uranium, which most explorers hadn't even thought about for decades. Most of the economists that have commented on the commodity demand believe this upturn will be sustained for the next few years at a minimum.

Prospectors are under pressure to find new occurrences to feed the requirements of the exploration companies. Ontario's highly prospective and varied geology is renowned and is drawing explorers from all over the world.

The Ontario Prospectors Association is confident the prospectors of Ontario will rise to the demand for new properties and have another successful year!

Minister's Message

Ontario Mining & Exploration Directory 2006

Rick Bartolucci
Ontario Minister of Northern Development and Mines

Ontario's mineral sector is enjoying a boom the likes of which we have not seen since the 1980s.

Our government is keenly aware of this sector's tremendous potential and we are working with our mining industry stakeholders on many fronts to ensure that Ontario remains a global leader.

Rick Bartolucci
Minister of Northern Development and Mines

The 2006 edition of the Ontario Mining & Exploration Directory comes at a very exciting time in the history of mineral development in this province.

Ontario's mineral sector is enjoying a boom the likes of which we have not seen since the 1980s. Commodity prices are at record highs and opportunities to grow and prosper abound. Three new mines have been opened over the last year and near record levels of mineral exploration are leading to the discovery of exciting new potential mineral deposits. With the recent signing of an agreement between DeBeers Canada and the Attawapiskat First Nation, we are on the verge of witnessing the establishment of Ontario's first diamond mine.

Our government is keenly aware of this sector's tremendous potential and we are working with our mining industry stakeholders on many fronts to ensure that Ontario remains a global leader. That is one reason we work with the Ontario Prospectors Association to produce this annual compendium which contains so much valuable information about mineral exploration companies and mining operations in Ontario. We are investing $15 million over three years to undertake geological mapping to help unlock the mineral potential in parts of Ontario's Far North. We are working with the Ontario Mineral Industry Cluster Council to identify opportunities to enhance competitiveness, innovation, and investment in Ontario's mineral cluster. We are also assisting producers by investing in research into deep mining capabilities, which will help extend the life of existing mines.

I take pride in the high quality of programs and services the ministry provides the mining industry with geological maps, inventories of mineralization, access to historical geological information and the considerable expertise found in our Ontario Geological Survey. The government's award-winning CLAIMaps system provides free, online access to province-wide digitized maps and mining land information. Our mining legislation is a model for other countries around the globe.

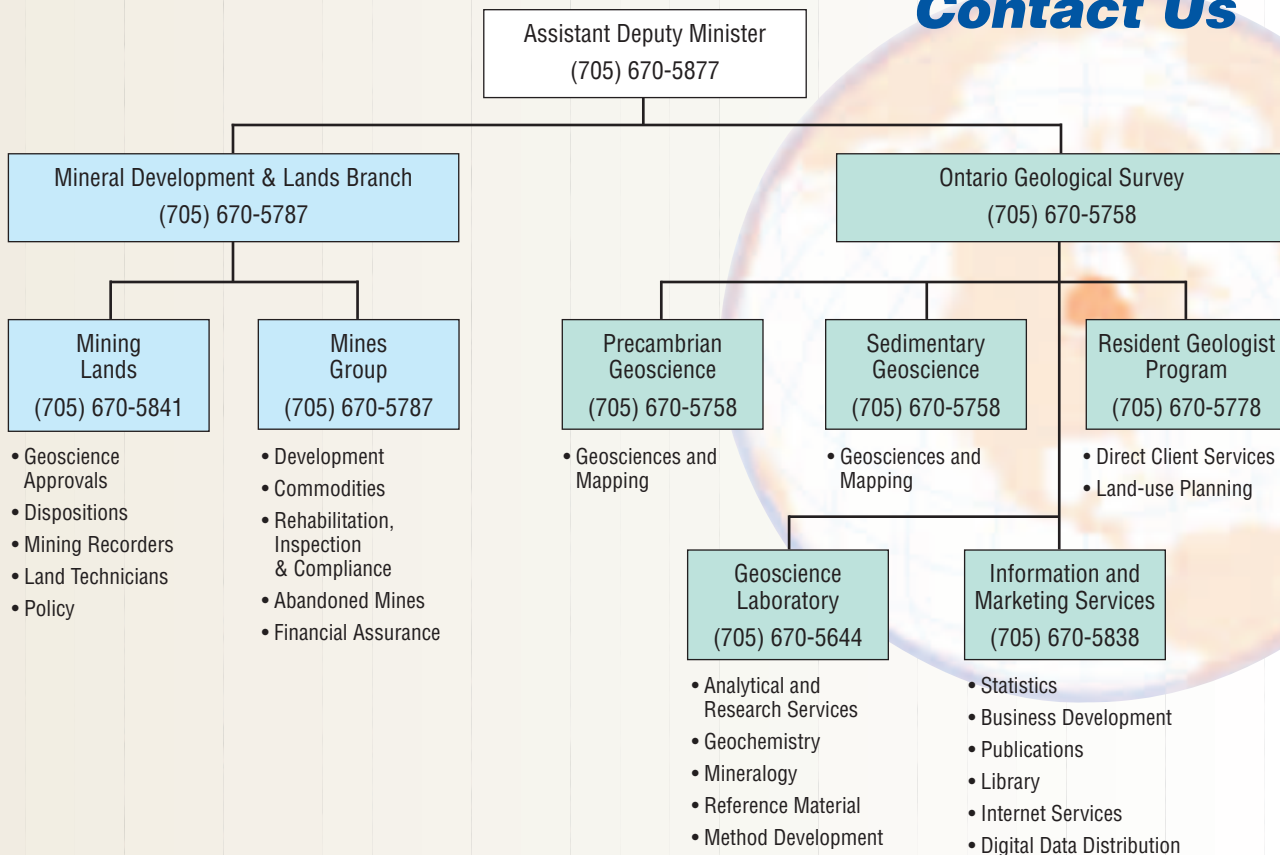

The economic benefits of mineral production are taking root throughout the entire province and particularly in Northern Ontario. Promoting mineral development in Ontario is a task our government takes seriously. We will continue working diligently to build on our status as a world leader in mineral exploration and development.
